They are organized in three main services: reception facilities, social housing and a community center. All the services foreseen linguistic and cultural mediations. An Italian language school is active across all services.

Reception centers for asylum seekers and refugees are organized into three main operational projects: CAS, SAI, and Humanitarian Corridors. They provide reception services and facilities for single men, women, and families, in cooperation with local authorities. Social operators support migrants throughout their integration process, including assistance with documentation, orientation to the labor market and local services, and housing searches. They also promote academic inclusion for both children and adults. Operators help beneficiaries address personal, health, and psychological needs and guide them toward autonomy in accessing local services.
