This is who we are!

The host organization is an off-grid intentional community in the South of France where people from all walks of life come together to live, learn, and create. This is where big ideas become real projects, and where we explore new ways of living that are more just, connected, and in harmony with the planet.

Our community is the heart of everything we do. The host organization is home to a diverse group of curious minds and bold doers who want to go beyond dreaming and start building. Here, people design and run volunteer projects themselves, gaining knowledge, confidence, and the tools to shape their own futures.

We view the host organization as a living laboratory for regeneration, exploring how community life can help restore and protect not just nature, but also the social, economic, and cultural systems that surround us. Through various non-formal educational methods integrated into our workshops, youth exchanges, trainings, and hands-on projects, we provide an opportunity to test ideas, share skills, and make a meaningful impact using limited resources.

Art and creativity play a significant role in our shared culture. They are how we experiment, communicate, and reimagine the future together. Creativity fuels innovation and problem-solving, helping us transform challenges into possibilities and bring regenerative ideas to life.

Equally important is belonging. Living in community teaches us the values of collaboration, care, accountability, and well-being. We believe that fostering connections, freedom of expression, and mutual support and solidarity are essential qualities for building just and regenerative systems.

Daily life here is simple and rooted in nature. It's a place to slow down, reflect, connect with ourselves and each other, and flourish together. We work closely with local allies to support and strengthen our region, while staying connected to a global network of intentional communities and organizations that, each in their own way, are creating a more diverse and regenerative world.
